

NYC Lifestyle

Feb. 4, 2023 to Feb. 18, 2023

Celebrating Black History Month

From music festivals and performances to cultural events, New York City is full of opportunities to celebrate and support Black History Month! This week, we've put together a list of fine dining locations, cultural events, and more happening around the city.

The Musket Room

On February 5, The Musket Room, a high-end restaurant in SoHo, will host a Black History Month-inspired community dinner led by a trio of renowned chefs. The menu features modern Jamaican cuisine served family-style. Tickets start at $80 per person.

Negril Village

Negril Village describes its restaurant as elevated Jamaican cuisine that honors the island's culinary traditions. This highly-rated, lively restaurant presents dishes that are just as satisfying to the eyes as they are to the palette! Just be sure to make a reservation before you go.

African Popup Festival

Enjoy food, shopping, and live shows at this year's African Popup Festival. This event features Black-owned businesses and retail vendors, African and Caribbean food, live dance and music performances, an art exhibition, and more!

Kaia Wine Bar

Kaia Wine Bar is a cozy South African-inspired restaurant and bar located on the Upper East Side. Enjoy their extensive list of African craft beers, over 50 wines from South Africa, and unique South African cuisine including elk tartare and their popular lamb burger!

NYC Lifestyle

Feb. 4, 2023 to Feb. 18, 2023

Celebrating Black History Month

Harlem Brewing Company

Head over to Harlem Brewing Company this month to see why Celeste Beatty's 22+ years in business have been so successful. This Black-owned brewery offers tastings of its signature brews such as Sugar Hill Golden Ale, Renaissance Wit, and 125 IPA.

Arsenal Gallery Show

On February 2, Central Park's Arsenal Gallery will premiere "Heritage: Exploring the Past, Present, and Future in Black Art," a showcase of African-inspired artworks created by NYC Parks employees. The exhibition also includes a collection of vintage posters and invitations produced by NYC Parks' Ebony Society.

Brooklyn Children's Museum

Join Brooklyn Children's Museum for their Black Future Festival, where you can bring your children any day between February 19-26. The festival features activities including interactive dance, history tours, arts and crafts, a skating rink and more!

Jazz Concert at The Opera House

Join Candlelight Concerts at The Opera House for their next show "Celebrating Black America - Jazz, Soul, and Blues." Set in a historic Williamsburg, Brooklyn venue, the review will feature masterpieces from Stevie Wonder, Duke Ellington, John Coltrane, and Ray Charles. Tickets start at $30.

*FirstService Residential does not receive commission or any other benefit from the service providers or establishments included in NYC Lifestyle.