Hispanic Heritage Month

September 15 is the official start of Hispanic Heritage Month, a time to celebrate the history, culture, and achievements of Hispanic Americans. As one of the most diverse regions in the world, the influence of Hispanic culture is present in almost every corner of our city. Join the celebration at some of the best destinations and events happening this month.

Outdoor Artist Market

Pop-up shops and local markets are some of the best ways to support small and independent businesses. On September 23 and 24, Created for You will host a two-day outdoor market at Industry City, featuring Hispanic-owned businesses, food vendors, and opportunities to network with local artists!

Live Music and Concerts

Looking to dance the night away to some of your favorite Latin artists? This list of upcoming live concerts has some of the biggest acts in the Spanish-speaking world. One of the top-billed acts is Mexican superstar Luis Miguel.

Puerto Rican Cooking Class

Essex Market will host a Hispanic cooking class on September 30 led by local Puerto Rican chef Maria Bido. What's on the menu? Puerto Rico's national dish, Arroz con Gandules, Pernil, and Yuca con mojo de Ajo y Cebollas! This delicious class will last around 90 minutes and tickets are available here.

Coco at the Park Slope Library

The Park Slope Library will host a screening of the award-winning animated feature Coco on September 29 in their auditorium. The event is free to attend, but make sure to arrive early! The library's movie nights are often well attended.

Latin Dance with ClassPass

Grab a partner and throw on your party shoes for one of these Latin dance classes on ClassPass. Their library of classes is impressive, to say the least, and they take place in studios all over the city. For a limited time, new members will receive points for free classes!

El Museo del Barrio

El Museo del Barrio on the Upper East Side is the city's only Latin-exclusive art gallery. With over 8,000 artworks from Latin America, the museum is a must see. This month, there's a special exhibit featuring 40 local artists from New York and Puerto Rico. There are also free tours on Saturdays and Sundays!

Best Mexican Restaurants in NYC

The number of Mexican restaurants in every borough means tough competition to be the best. From juicy tacos to traditional mole and aguachile, this list of NYC's best Mexican restaurants should inspire a culinary adventure around the city.

Deep Cuts Record Store

Every vinyl lover knows the distinct joy of flipping through records at a local shop and discovering new music or rare selections. We recommend Deep Cuts Record Store in Ridgewood, Queens, a Latin-owned shop with an extensive collection of Latin vinyls and CDs.
